“Canva” is a special place in the online world. Its story is like a cool adventure. The founder, Melanie, led the adventure when she was very young. The story starts because young Melanie wanted to do something for her mom. She thought her mom spent too much time working with school teaching materials. She hoped that she could help her mom work fast and easily.

Melanie's idea turned into a simple platform first, and it was like a basic version of Canva. With this platform, it's easy for Melanie's mom to finish her work. It also became a fun space for being creative.

Later on, the platform grew big and became a company. Some cool people believe in Melanie's ideas and they invested money or worked for the company. Thanks to these cool people, the company became the Canva we know today—a place where people can have fun being creative.

Canva is like a magic toolbox for everyone. It has lots of pictures, film, music and so on. With these ready-made designs, people can turn their creative ideas into beautiful designs and make awesome works.

Imagine you use a 3D printer to make your own house. In California, seabirds will soon have homes made by 3D printers, too! These clay nests will keep the birds safe when they have eggs and protect the baby birds.

Conservationists highly care about the numbers of seabirds, like the ashy storm-petrel. These small gray birds live along California's coasts, making nests in rock holes. Sadly, human activities and natural enemies hurt them.

To help the seabirds, conservationists use clay to create safe nests. Clay lasts a long time, even longer than wood or plastic. The nests can last almost the birds' whole life. And they are hard to break and easy to transport. This helps protect the birds from natural enemies and other dangers.

Why do conservationist use 3D printers for clay nests? Because many birds need them! 3D printers can create the same designs many times. Besides, it is hard and takes long time to make nests by hand. But making nests by 3D printers doesn't take so much time. It's much faster and easier. Many teams are working together on the plan. They hope that other teams will join in printing nests for endangered seabirds. Maybe one day, you or your class can make a clay home for a special bird! 【94年基測改】
