These days, many adults and teenagers suffer from stress, (43)_____. We already spend a long time in school or the office. The problem with smartphones is that we can check messages in the evening and on weekends, too. We never really “switch off,” and that seems to be making us unhappy.

Modern life is convenient but unhealthy. It’s important to relax and spend time with people we love and trust. Too much screen time not only causes stress (44)_____. Both adults and children take less exercise than in the past, because they prefer to go online.

Take the day off from technology! Doctors suggest that, once a week, we should go to the park and leave our phones at home. Fresh air is good for your body, and it also cheers you up.

(45)_____, that’s even better because pets reduce stress. Besides, caring for an animal can help children learn how to be more active. Remember, it’s not OK to be a homebody. Go online less and reclaim our real life.

43. (A) and getting enough sleep is the main reason
(B) and it’s helpless to get a special chemical
(C) and technology could be the reason why
(D) and they wonder how to use the Internet
44. (A) it can also help us correct the mistakes
(B) but also hurts your eyes and makes you fat
(C) but children should spend less time online
(D) but also makes decisions about their future
45. (A) If you have a dog to play with
(B) When you jog for half an hour
(C) After you switch off your phone
(D) Even though you’re feeling tired

Long time ago, there was a monster, Nian. It looked like a lion with a horn on its head. Every Chinese New Year’s Eve, Nian would not only attack people and animals they raised but also damage the field in the village. They were frightened and didn’t know how to deal with the troubling problem. So, they would hide in the mountains.

One day, a stranger, who had a long white beard, came to their village to look for food. A kind woman provided him something to eat and told him about Nian. The stranger said, “Let me stay in your house and I promise to scare the monster away.” The woman agreed and left. When the night came, Nian showed up as usual. It was going into the woman’s house. However, when it saw red banners around the door, something strange happened. The red banners which did work like magic kept Nian from entering the house. Suddenly, there were loud noises everywhere and lots of tiny fires in the air. Then, the stranger, who was in all red, appeared. And he was lighting more firecrackers. That scared Nian to death, and it ran away.

When the villagers returned, they were so surprised to see the stranger wasn’t hurt. They wondered how the stranger made it and asked him to share his secret, and he did. The villagers did what the stranger taught them year after year. That’s why people celebrate Chinese New Year the same way.

What do you see when you look up at the bright moon in the sky? People in East Asia see the Jade Rabbit. Ancient legends tell the story of an old man who was begging for food. A rabbit threw itself onto a fire, offering to feed the man. The old man was the Jade Emperor, and he rewarded the rabbit by letting it live forever on the moon.

Some Europeans see a man on the moon carrying sticks on his back. German stories say the man was banished to the moon for stealing his neighbor’s wood. Roman fables say he’s been punished for stealing sheep.

A Maori legend explains that the image on the moon is the woman Rona under a tree. One dark night, Rona hurt her foot because she couldn’t see, and she called the moon rude names. The angry moon goddess reached down to grab Rona, who tried to hold onto a tree. The tree ended up on the moon with her.

People say that pointing at the moon brings bad luck. Other people say the moon will cut your ear if you point at it. Stories warn us to watch out for werewolves during a full moon.

The moon also has a place in language. If people say that something happens “once in a blue moon,” they mean it rarely happens. In fact, a “blue moon” is a second full moon in one calendar month, and that happens every three years.

A whale exploded on Sunny Shore Beach on the weekend. It was the second time this year that a whale exploded in our town. Luckily, no one was hurt this time. The dead whale was discovered by Kate Brown. While she was taking a walk in the morning, she noticed a strong smell in the air. She knew that this smell was the gas building up in the whale’s body, because she heard about it in the news. Kate did not come near it. Instead, (53)_____.

A few hours later, Dr. Roy Nantes arrived on the scene with his assistants. They tried to explode the whale in a controlled way. They poked little holes in the whale’s skin to allow the gas to release slowly. Unfortunately, (54)_____. There was so much gas in the whale that it exploded anyway, covering several people with whale blood and guts.

We interviewed those who saw the whole thing happen. Lyle Smith watched from his car. He was shocked by the smell. He said,” Even from far away, you could smell the whale’s body. It smelled like raw meat that left in the sun for days.” Ted Rivers was very close to the whale when it exploded. All he could share with us was, “ I think (55)_____. I would never feel like eating for days.”

Luckily, after clean-up, the beach has now been reopened to the public. People can enjoy the scenery.
