In Taiwan, you may not see a "fourth floor" in many places, and you may not see a "No. 4" bus, either. For Chinese, "four" is an unlucky number because it sounds like "death" in Chinese.

In the west, people also have some superstitions. For example, some people take the rabbits' back legs for a symbol of good luck, as well as the horseshoe. Even today, some people still think that breaking a mirror may give you seven-year bad luck. This comes from a long time ago. The Romans thought that every seven years the world had a new start. If you want to run away from your bad luck, you need to wait seven years!

either 也; because 因為; sound 聽起來; death 死; example 例子; symbol 象徵; as well as 如同; break 打破; Romans 羅馬人; think/ thought 認為
